Hi my name is Ginette, owner and founder of GiniVee Studio. I have 14 years experience in retail banking and made a transition into the beauty industry in 2020 as a nail tech in the height of the pandemic. What started as a hobby later became a passion. Enough of a passion to resign from my 14 year career and pursue my passion full-time! In less than a year I have been able to expand my business and recently established a beauty studio offering lash extensions, brow services, and laser hair removal. It has been a true dream come true.

Ponchitta Lanoue is the founder of Ponch Cosmetics, a botanical beauty platform for women of color who suffer from common skin conditions such as hyperpigmentation. Ponchitta burned her skin when she was 16 years old using an extremely strong skincare product that left an acne scar. That would soon kickstart her clean beauty journey to find a solution to her problem. She noticed that very few beauty products alleviated a common problem amongst African Americans who suffer from dark spots and hyperpigmentation. Years later she would go back to school and take a marketing class. In that class she had to market a product that she loved and knew a lot about and so she remembered her acne scar situation. Therefore, she chose cosmetics. She did so well on her project that her professor encouraged her to launch. So, she did. She made $2,000 in two hours. The rest was history. Ponchitta now lives in Houston, Texas. Ponch Cosmetics is permanently based there.

In 2021, I established Sole Wash, a sneaker laundry in Washington, D.C. It's the first sneaker laundry in D.C. and the only women-owned with brick-and-mortar in the Nation. As far as I can remember, I always found a way to give back to my communities in some form or fashion. When I decided to make the courageous transition from a Federal Government employee to entrepreneurship, I was determined to not only be inspirational but to create a legacy surrounding love and being kind to the earth. Growing up in the era of 90's hip-hop, the evolution of Afro-Latin break-dancers but most importantly rise of the sneaker culture. Through my love for sneaker, I created my own given vessel. Approximately, 20 billion pairs of shoes are produced annually, and unfortunately, roughly 300 million pairs are thrown away each year. I didn't start a business, I ignited a movement, a culture.

During her childhood, Tavarez would hear phrases like, "Why don't you brush your hair?" and "Are you going to the hair salon to straighten your hair?" which led her to believe that curly hair wasn't beautiful. She spent years using heat and chemicals trying to straighten her hair but eventually decided to embrace her natural curls. After searching for apparel brands that matched her newfound confidence, this pioneer chose to create a line of her own, Hause of Curls. She turned negative words about natural hair into empowerment statements on t-shirts.

Hi, I'm Lourdes Karina Pinto, born and raised in Paraguay where empanadas are very popular for any occasion. I started Tasty Empanadas by demand from my friends and family, who were always praising all the time how good they were.

My love for cooking started at a young age, when watching my mom and grandmother cook traditional Paraguayan homemade dishes. I used to help them, and everything that I learned is what I put into practice when I am in the kitchen.

Tasty Empanadas was established in 2018 in Howard County MD. Our mission is to provide handmade and delicious empanadas that will satisfy the palates of our customers.

We use fresh ingredients for all our products

In recent years I have dedicated my time to strengthening my knowledge about the benefits of essential oils in support of moods and general health. During this time, I have developed formulas for my family and myself, enjoying the results and the newfound advantages.

As a woman, I experienced many physical, mental, and spiritual changes during the last few years and essential oils have allowed me to find relief. As a psychologist, I am interested in learning about mental well-being, since the balance of body and mind is essential to lead a more calm and happy life.

Throughout my 9 pharmaceutical sales and interior design career, my goal has been to make people feel good by tuning in to their needs and offering personalized alternatives - I'm a really good listener.

2015 unveiled unresolved traumas triggering anxiety + insomnia for the first time in my life. Prescribed meds caused suicidal thoughts and increased my stress levels, but in turn, it led me to a holistic healing journey through mindfulness practices + alternative medicine. After a four-year battle with anxiety, I was introduced to CBD, my life changed, and my vision for h + f was fueled: package and share the feel-good effect with the world.

Today, hustle + flo™ is a woman-of-color-owned and operated business bringing a fresh perspective and a simple alternative to the CBD industry.

She is the daughter of Salvadoran immigrants, born and raised by a single mom on Long Island, NY. Navigating language, culture, and heritage was always a challenge for her, the feeling of what home meant, embracing her heritage, and connecting with her Salvadoran roots.

As burning candles was always her way of indulging in self-care she decided that she would make her own candles during the COVID-19 pandemic lockdown. Melissa realized Latin@s don't have scents and fragrances that accurately represent them in the home fragrance industry. With that in mind, she set out to create a collection of Latin@-inspired candles to share our culture with the rest of the world.

I was born in Costa Rica in 1983. My parents had three children and I am the middle child. I went to the US alone in 2005 and started from scratch. My first jobs were consisted of long hours and little income. I had my first child in 2012 and I started working in the Tire Recycling industry. I was able to open up a small shop operating under different people until in 2021 I open my own Tire Recycling Company.

Amanda was born and raised in Los Angeles, California. Growing up as a first-generation Latina in Los Angeles inspired her to explore different cultures and have adventures that often involved attending concerts, visiting museums, attending various festivals, and exploring Historical sites. It was during these experiences that she developed a passion for writing.

Amanda's passion for writing and love for her culture encouraged her to pursue it in her higher education studies, where she received a Bachelor of the Arts in English with a minor in History from the California State University of Channel Islands and a Master of the Arts in History from the California State University of Los Angeles.

Now residing in Atlanta, Georgia, Amanda has started her own business, StarLit Writing, where she hopes to use her skills to help others spark their content through writing!
